Judge Ryan said that he did not think much of the King's message, which seems to have given many Irishmen hope of speedy reforms. He pronounced it indefinite and ambiguous. Judge Ryan said that he would cover these points more fully in his address to-morrow night at the Majestic Theatre. His attitude will prove a great surprise to many New York Irishmen, but he says he has assurances from leading men of the race in all parts of the country that they agree with the sentiments he expresses.

MERIDIAN A WEALTHY CITY OF 20,000.

Meridian is a town of about 20,000 people and an important manufacturing and shipping centre. It is the junction point of five railroads, three of them being trunk lines and the distributing centre for a rich and prosperous agricultural and cotton country.

The output of Meridian's mills, factories, lumber plants and other industrial institutions is about $4,000,000 per annum. Northern capital is largely in-terested in the city, which is more progressive than the average com-munity of its size in the far South.

Pretty Frances Brunner Now Gets Judgment Against Her Cousin.

Frances Brunner, a pretty Bostonian malden, to-day told a remarkable story and won a judgment of $2,137 from a jury in Justice Leventritt's part of the Supreme Court.

She testified through an interpreter that she came from Bohemia when she was only twelve years old to live with her cousin, Frank Mosner, who keeps a meat market, at No. 1873 First ovenue. She was sent to school a few months and then was taken out of school and named as cashier. "For five years I sat in the cashier's booth and made change for my coasin's ers." she testified with much sobbing and many tears. "I fived upstairs with my cousins, and they gave me clothing. But I never lind one single percy in money in all those five years." Mosner a.d. his wife both testified that they boarded and clothed Frances and that she might have had money if she had asked for it.

"Might she have had as much as $25 if she had asked for it?" asked I. B. Wheeler in cross-examination, and Mrs. Mosner said that had the Bohe girl asked for $25 she certainly would have got it-but she didn't ask. The jury promptly awarded all the tearful little cashier asked, with loterest, aggregating $2,137.

SHOOTING WITNESSES CALLED FOR GRAND JURY.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., Merch 8.-The Suffolk County Grand Jury, which will be sworn in at the County Court-House at this place on Monday morning, expected to consider the case of Dr. J. Prof. Bert Reese, who says he is the champion mind-reader of the world, np-peared at Brooklyn Police Headquarters to day and told Inspector Adam Cross that the Czar of Russia had sent for him and that he intended to sail for Russia on March 12. Prof. Reese said Nicholas is greatly interested in psychic research and that he wishes to become thoroughly familiar with the science. Hence his imperial command to the king of the mind.

Inspector Cross has known the proessor for more than eleven years. He says he met him at a dinner and was astonished at some of the wonderful feats he performed. The inspector says he believes that Reese is sincere, and that he has never yet known him to tell an untruth. When Reese was asked to lemonstrate his ability in his peculiar 'profession" he readily consented. Stepping up to a reporter, he removed his glasses and informed the young man that the lenses had been purchased at two different places, which proved

Then Prof. Reese told Deputy Police Commissioner O'Keefe what that worthy official had for breakfast.

"You had a very light breakfast this morning," announced the mind-reader. "It consisted of an egg. a cup of chocolate and one slice of bread and butter."

"That is correct," said the Deputy. "That is correct," said the Deputy,

"That is correct," said the Deputy Commissioner.

The professor then left the room for a few minutes and in his absence several of those in the room wrote questions on a sheet of paper. The paper was then put in a drawer. When Breese entered the room he told the astonished group of policemen and reporters just what questions they and written on the paper.

"That fellow is a wonder," was the unanimous verdict. Breese says that he has received as much as $1,000 for entertaining Charles M. Schwab, George Gould, the Vanderbilts and other rich people. He lives at No. 150 East Seventy-second street, and stoutly denies having a press agent or being connected with any show.
